

RIPA Part 2 Inspections Common Criticisms by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners

The Office of Surveillance Commissioners (OSC) has now started doing much more rigorous inspections. Some councils have been inspected twice in one year!

<http://www.surveillancecommissioners.gov.uk>

Ibrahim has read many OSC inspection reports. He has a very good understanding of the process they adopt and also the questions they ask. The following is a list of common criticisms made of councils by the OSC in their reports:

FORMS

- Use of out of date forms (Check Home Office site for latest forms)
- No Unique Reference Number (URN) on forms
- Not amending forms so that only those grounds are present which are available to the public authority e.g. councils – preventing, detecting crime or preventing disorder
- Pre completed forms
- Use of cut and paste in boxes/repetitive narrative

AUTHORISATION PROCESS

- Rubber stamping – no real thought given to authorisation
- Necessity, proportionality and collateral intrusion not fully understood/considered by investigators and authorisers
- Likelihood of obtaining Confidential Information not fully considered
- Confusion re: reviews and renewals
- Lack of understanding of when a person is a CHIS
- Confusion about interference with property powers under Police Act 1997 – councils can't do this
- More robust management and quality assurance procedures required

RECORD KEEPING

- Central records not compliant with Code of Practice
- Inadequate monitoring, recording and audit of surveillance equipment
- Inadequate handling and storage of surveillance product/evidence

POLICIES AND PROCEDURE DOCUMENTS

- No CCTV protocol/procedure - NB OSC May wish to visit your CCTV control room
- Inadequate/no RIPA policy
- Inadequate guidance document (or out of date)

TRAINING AND AWARENESS

- Lack of regular training/refresher trainer - NB OSC may ask to see recent training materials
- Inadequate training
